Additional Backup Information

The Kent S. Butler Memorial Excellence Fund in the University of Texas' Community & Regional Planning Department was established in 2012 to provide ongoing annual funding to support student internships at community and environmental organizations. As a special tribute to celebrate Kent's work and commitment to environmental quality in Central Texas, the UT School of Architecture and the City of Austin are partnering to host the inaugural internship at the Balcones Canyonland Preserve, home of the Kent Butler Ecological Reserve. The responsibility for funding for this position will be divided evenly by the City and the University of Texas, with each party providing $3500, for a total of $7000.

During the course of ten weeks, a student will work with staff in the City of Austin Balcones Canyonlands Preserve division to learn about land management practices, participate in environmental planning, and to assist with the development of community outreach programs.
