PROPOSAL

Construct a second story, re-surface the house, replace all windows and doors, demolish the front porch.

RESEARCH

The existing house was constructed ca. 1938 by Lutie R. Carter (aka Peaches), the widow of Alfred H. Carter. Mrs. Carter was born in Bastrop in 1903. She worked for many years as a secretary and treasurer for various attorneys and life insurance companies, including Amos Felts, Judge Ben Powell, John Rauhut and Christian, Miller and Honts. She helped prepare and indexed the Moffet's Texas Form Book, a handbook for Texas lawyers. She lived at 1400 Preston Avenue until her death in 1991.

PROJECT SPECIFICATIONS

The applicant proposes to demolish the front porch and front door, and demolish the roof to construct a second-story addition. A side wall will be demolished and replaced with a single story addition; windows on the east elevation will be removed and filled in. On the rear of the house, the existing pergola will be removed; the existing addition will be demolished. The entire house will have a stucco finish over the existing painted brick. Further, the applicant proposes to demolish the front walk and replace it with stepping stones.

The house will be transformed from a one-story Colonial Revival to a two-story house with echoes of French Provincial design. The second story will rise flush with the existing wall and not be set back from the existing house; the entire house will be finished with stucco. All windows will be replaced, and the new windows will be floor-to ceiling on the first floor and 2:2 above; the central entry will have a segmental-arched opening and appears to be glass. A new metal-roofed porch will be suspended above the front door and the first two inside bays on the front façade. The only vestige of the existing house that will remain is a bay window on the west elevation, and it appears that the windows on that feature will also be replaced.

STANDARDS FOR REVIEW

The existing property is contributing to the Old West Austin National Register Historic District. Applicable general design review guidelines state:

- Do not destroy the distinguishing original qualities or character of a building, structure, or site and its environment. Avoid the removal or alteration of any historic material or distinctive architectural features.
- Recognize all buildings, structures, and sites as products of their own time. Do not construct alterations which have no historical basis and which seek to create an earlier appearance.

- Changes which have taken place over time are evidence of the history and development of a building, structure, or site and its environment. Recognize and respect the changes, which may have acquired significance in their own right.
- Treat with sensitivity distinctive stylistic features or examples of skilled craftsmanship which characterize a building, structure, or site.
- Contemporary design for alterations and additions to existing properties are appropriate when such alterations and additions do not destroy significant historic, architectural, or cultural material and such design is compatible with the size, scale, color, material, and character of the property, neighborhood, or environment.
- Construct new additions or alterations to structures in such a manner that if such addition or alteration were to be removed in the future, the essential form and integrity of the structure will be unimpaired.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Recommend that the applicant re-consider their project; this application violates every design review guideline in the book, and will render the house non-contributing to the Historic District. If the applicant wants the house they are proposing, they should build new rather than obliterating a contributing house in a Historic District.

Lutie Ruth (Peaches) Carter

Lutie Ruth (Peaches) Carter was born in Elgin, Texas, on May 5, 1903, the daughter of Lutie Stevens and Alfred Hinds Carter. She was one of 13 children. Peaches died on October 14, 1991.

Peaches graduated from the Metropolitan Business School in Dallas and moved to Austin in 1926. She worked as a legal secretary for Amos Felts, who had law offices in Elgin and Austin and later worked for Judge Ben Powell and also for the firm of Christian, Miller and Honts. She was instrumental in the preparation and indexing of the Moffett's Texas Form Book, a handbook for Texas lawyers. Banks Miller said of Peaches at her retirement, "Her devotion to duty, her willingness to do anything that was asked, her steadfast loyalty, is not to be found in many individuals in this day and time."

Peaches was known for her tremendous love of family, neighbors, and especially the children. She cross-stitched a picture for her kitchen that said, "God loves the little children." She had added, "And so do we."

Peaches is survived by three sisters, Nara Carter, Austin, Hattie Beth Green, Houston, and Mattie May Tinnin, Shreveport. She is also survived by numerous nieces and nephews, who were very dear to her.

Services will be held at 10:00 AM, Wednesday in Weed-Corley Chapel, with burial in Elgin Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Campbell Green, Jim Arledge, Frank Bryan, Jr., Tom Abraham, Richard Arbraham, Dwight Dalrymple, Jerry Ryan and Ricky Potts.

Memorials may be sent to the First United Methodist Church, Austin, Texas, or a charity of your choice.

Arrangements by Weed-Corley Funeral Home, 3125 N. Lamar, 452-8811.
