PROPOSAL

Demolish a ca. 1929 house now converted to multi-family use.

ARCHITECTURE

One-story, L-plan, side-gabled stuccoed Tudor Revival-styled frame house with a projecting front gable and a partial-width inset porch to the left of the front-gabled section of the house; single and triple 1:1 fenestration.

RESEARCH

The house was built in 1929 by John Q. and Mary Smith as their residence. John Q. Smith was a traveling salesman, selling boots and shoes. After he died around 1938, Mary Smith continued to live in the house until the mid-1960s. She divided the house into student apartments and made additions to the rear for more apartments. The majority of her tenants were students at the University of Texas.

STAFF COMMENTS

The house is listed in the Comprehensive Cultural Resources Survey (1984) but without a priority for research.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Encourage re-use of the house in the new multi-family project, but release the permit upon completion of a City of Austin Documentation Package consisting of photographs of all elevations, a dimensioned sketch plan, and a narrative history, for archiving at the Austin History Center. The house has neither the architectural nor the historical significance to warrant individual designation as a historic landmark.
