DEMOLITION AND RELOCATION PERMITS

1205 E. CESAR CHAVEZ STREET

PROPOSAL

Demolish a ca. 1902 house.

ARCHITECTURE

One-story, wing-and-gable plan frame house with a partial-width independent shed-roofed porch on plain wood posts; non-historic replacement windows in the front.

RESEARCH

The house was built around 1902 for Walter and Ida Bonugli, who lived here until around 1934. Walter Bonugli was the son of Michael and Mary Bonugli, prominent neighborhood grocers in this section of East Austin for many years, and it is very possible that Michael and Mary Bonugli built this house, as they lived at 1201 E. 1st Street, which was demolished around 1921 for a commercial building (which housed several grocery stores, including the East Austin A&P Grocery Store in the late 1920s and early 1930s). Walter Bonugli was in the soft drink business, starting off as a bottle washer at the Austin Ice and Bottling Company, then working at the Star Bottling Works, where he was a bottler and later became a foreman, and finally superintendent and salesman. Around 1915, he went to work as a salesman for the Austin Coca-Cola Bottling Company, then around 1919, he became a salesman for the meat packing company, Swift and Company, a position he held for the remainder of his tenancy in this house. Around 1934, the Bonuglis moved to 700 Landon Lane, where they lived for the rest of their lives.

From the mid-1930s until around 1946, the house was a rental property. The tenants included a couple where the wife worked as a saleslady for Scarbrough's, Austin's leading downtown department store, the proprietor of a meat market, a plumber, and a serviceman for the Texas Public Service Company (the precursor to Southern Union Gas). Ricardo and Seferina Guerrero are listed as the owners of the house in the 1947 city directory; he was a mechanic, who died in 1948. Seferina Guerrero stayed in the house until around 1950, but it appears that the house remained in the Guerrero family, who rented it out for many years thereafter. Later tenants of the house included the proprietor of a service station, and city employees.

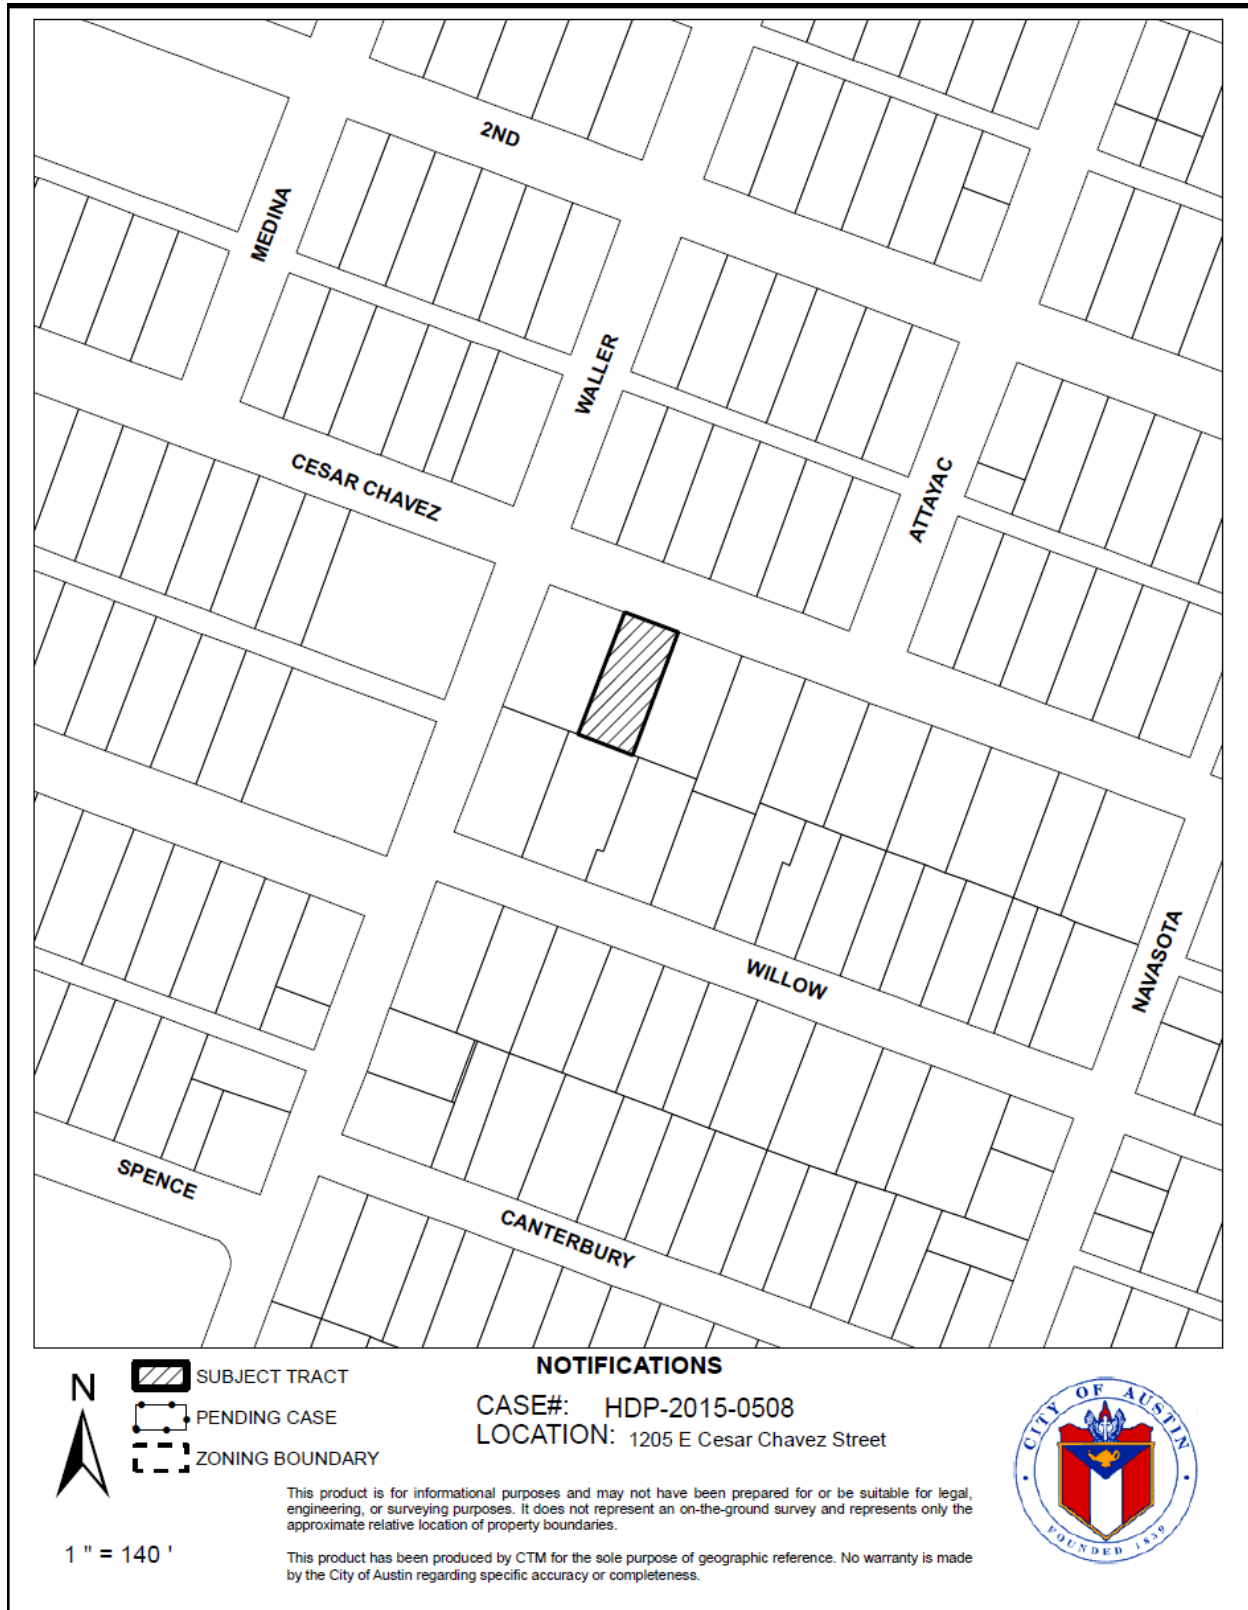

STAFF COMMENTS

The house is not listed in any City survey. The house has suffered numerous architectural modifications, including unsympathetic alterations to the front façade, which include the removal of all bays across the wing section of the front of the house. The applicant is seeking to remove this house to build a driveway and parking lot for the adjacent commercial building at 1201-03 E. Cesar Chavez Street.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Release the permit upon completion of a City of Austin Documentation Package, consisting of photographs of all elevations, a dimensioned sketch plan, and a narrative history, for archiving at the Austin History Center. While the house has a very interesting history and is an important part of the context of the settlement of East Austin, it has undergone such radical architectural changes that it cannot qualify as a historic landmark.
