

HUDSON & O'LEARY, L.L.P. RESUME

HUDSON & O'LEARY, L.L.P. was founded in January 2006 as a "boutique firm" with an emphasis on providing our local government clients with a broad spectrum of legal services in an efficient and cost-effective manner. The firm consists of Greg Hudson who practiced for many years in large and mid-sized law firms and Tom O'Leary who practiced as a solo practitioner after starting his career as an Assistant County Attorney in Travis County, Texas. With the opening of HUDSON & O'LEARY, L.L.P., we made the commitment to concentrate our expertise in a small firm catering to local government entities. We are focused on meeting the needs of our clients in a prompt and efficient manner. Our commitment is to deliver first-rate legal representation and customer service with a high level of responsiveness and personal attention.

Our firm has specialized expertise in many areas of local government and public law, including health care, open government, contracts and complex transactions, elections, employment and personnel matters, procurement, regulatory and administrative proceedings, and land use law. In addition, we have significant experience as local government general counsel or special counsel, including advising clients regarding complex contracts, contract negotiation, regulatory and statutory compliance, and litigation.

We have served in the capacities of City Attorney, County Attorney Pro Tem, Assistant County Attorney, and outside general counsel for numerous local government entities, including Texas counties and cities, hospital and health care districts, emergency services districts, school districts and other special districts. Having worked inside local governments, we understand our clients' needs for prompt, accurate, thoughtful and cost-efficient legal representation.

Our litigation practice includes all aspects of litigation needs for local governments, including election law, bidding and contracts, land use matters, open meetings and open records, tort claims defense and civil rights law.

Our legal experience and local government expertise allow us to quickly identify legal issues facing our clients, and promptly prepare a coordinated strategy for addressing these issues in a manner that best meets our clients' needs and objectives.

We pride ourselves on being on the cutting edge of communications and technology. Using web-based resources and online databases we have access to legal resources, law libraries and research capabilities once reserved for only the largest law firms, as well as multi-party file sharing and video conferencing. We strive to take advantage of these resources so as to keep our clients abreast of changes in the law or in various practice areas affecting our local government clients, and as tools for efficient and robust communication with our clients regarding their legal needs.
