

HISTORIC LANDMARK COMMISSION
 NOVEMBER 27, 2017
 DEMOLITION AND RELOCATION PERMITS
 HDP-2017-0497
 501 E. MARY STREET

PROPOSAL

Demolish a ca. 1929 house.

ARCHITECTURE

One-story, rectangular-plan, clipped side-gabled, frame house with a partial-width, front-gabled independent porch on ornamental metal posts; single and paired 1:1 fenestration. The house has synthetic siding and an artificial stone wainscot, but appears to have its original windows.

RESEARCH

The ca. 1929 house was first occupied by Clyde and Thelma Milstead, who lived here until around 1932. Clyde Milstead was the manager of Merchants Transfer and Storage Company. The house was then rented by a traveling salesman, Joseph W. Day, and his wife, Ruby, then by an electrician, followed by a contractor. Albert F. and Marian Byars then lived here from around 1938 until around 1946. Albert F. Byars was a cook and chef; from the late 1940s until his death in 1970, he operated Flossie's Café, his nickname namesake, at 2801 S. Lamar Boulevard (now the Thundercloud Subs at S. Lamar and Manchaca Road). Robert T. Williams, a printer for the Steck Company, and his wife, Marie, purchased the house in 1947, and lived there the rest of their lives. Marie Williams passed away in 2017.

STAFF COMMENTS

The house was listed with no priority for research in the Comprehensive Cultural Resources Survey (1984). The house was listed as contributing in the 2009 inventory for the application for a local historic district in Bluebonnet Hills.

Staff has evaluated the house under the criteria for designation set forth in the City Code and has determined that this house does not meet the threshold for individual landmark designation:

- Architecture. The house is a frame house dating from 1930 with no architectural distinction.
- Historical association. The house was a rental property for the first 17 years of its existence, with short-term renters until around 1938. It was the only rental property of all the houses in the 500 blocks listed in the 1930 U.S. Census report. The most prominent of the renters were Albert F. "Flossie" and Marion Byars, who lived here between 1938 and 1946. He was a chef who went on to establish his own restaurant after moving from this house. The longest-term owner of the property, Robert T. Williams, was a printer for the Steck Company. There do not appear to be significant historical associations.
- Archaeology. The house was not evaluated for its potential to yield significant data concerning the human history or prehistory of the region.
- Community value. The house does not possess a unique location, physical characteristic, or significant feature that contributes to the character, image, or cultural identity of the city, the neighborhood, or a particular demographic group.

- Landscape feature. The property is not a significant natural or designed landscape with artistic, aesthetic, cultural, or historical value to the city.

STAFF RECOMMENDATION

Encourage rehabilitation and adaptive re-use, then relocation over demolition, but release the permit upon completion of a City of Austin Documentation Package. The house does not meet the criteria for individual designation as a historic landmark, although it could be contributing to a historic district incorporating the 500 block of E. Mary Street.

E-mail from the applicant:

Hi Steve,

>

> We met with the neighborhood representatives and the buyers of 501 W. Mary, and honestly I don't think there's a lot of common ground here. We're going to review the proposed design standards with the buyer, but one of the neighbors threatened to "fight them if they don't like the design standards" being proposed, so it set a bad tone.

E-mail from James Bilodeau, of the E. Mary Street Historic District Team:

Separately, we did meet with the potential buyers of 501 E. Mary St. and the Joseph Brothers. Unfortunately, not much progress was made. Our hope was to offer any help, resources to encourage the buyers to rehabilitate the house. We had reached out to Kate Singleton at Preservation Austin and she had offered to line up an architect free of charge that could show the potential to incorporate the existing structure into a new design. We also came prepared to discuss the tax advantages of rehabilitation within an LHD that would make rehabilitation of the existing structure more cost effective than a full demolition and rebuild. Unfortunately they were not willing to even discuss either of these options.

We sent them the proposed Design Guidelines for the LHD and are now hoping to explore ways in which any new construction could achieve some degree of compatibility with the LHD. We're hoping that they'll be willing to explore this, even if it's just on the level of massing and setbacks. As we have with other homes in the neighborhood, we're of course happy to work with them should they need any variances to accomplish this.

COMPANY MAKES SPECIALTY OF HAULING

When household goods are to be hauled or stored, the Merchants Transfer and Storage company, located at 410 East Third street, is in position to handle all orders, large or small, according to Clyde Milstead, manager.

The company recently received a large new moving van with 1000 cubic feet storage capacity to offer better service to the patrons, both for hauls within the city or to distant points.

With its slogan "We Move Anything," the Merchants Transfer and Storage company moves any type of load to any point that the customer desires, and frequent trips are made to other points in transporting household goods and other loads.

Through its long service here the Merchants Transfer and Storage company has gained a high reputation for its storage facilities, many of the leading business houses storing commercial cargoes in the company's fireproof warehouse. The company maintains a bonded warehouse with a storage space of 32,000 square feet, and charges the lowest insurance rate in the city for storage.

The company also maintains an excellent packing and shipping department with experienced employees in charge. Estimates are made at any time on packing and shipping by freight and prices are also quoted on truck hauls overland to cities and towns outside of Austin.

The Merchants Transfer and Storage company specializes in hauling household goods, commercial cargoes, machinery and other heavy hauling, but is prepared to haul any type of load, large or small.
