Additional Backup Information:

In 2012 the City's Bond Oversight Committee recommended to Council that land be purchased for a future Austin Police Department substation to service the rapid growth of the northwest quadrant (Adam Sector) of the City. Eroding response times to demands for services and distances that taxpayers have to drive to access basic City services were key drivers in the roll up to the 2012 Bond election. In November 2012, voters approved "Proposition 16: Public Safety" which allocated bond funding to design and construct new public safety facilities. Implementation of this bond initiative for the northwest substation is set forth in two phases: Phase I - Site Acquisition and Pre-Planning; Phase II - Design and Construction.

The acquisition of the 4.655 acres will further advance the City's ability to deliver community-based policing services to a growing and diverse public. The negotiated value of $1,500,000.00 for the 4.655 acres is justified based on an independent third party appraisal that was performed on behalf of the City. The negotiated amount plus closing cost is in the amount not to exceed $1,503,000.00.
