

Steve,

Repairs have been made to the I.Q. Hurdle house in compliance with the Historic Landmark Commission request. We have designed and installed a sign on the property to provide information about the life and contributions of Mr. Hurdle so the community can learn more about his historical influence and impact on the area. Of all the historic resources along this area of East 12th St. we believe this is now one of the best looking, best interpreted and best maintained. We hope it will inspire others with historic properties to clean up, stabilize and interpret the significance of their facilities to the community.

The property owner has set out to conduct a cultural and historic preservation study on the entire East 12th Street area. In addition to preservation, this study will consider on-going operations and maintenance needs of cultural and historic resources such as the IQ Hurdle House and the Passon House to determine if partnerships can be built for long-term sustainability. We look forward to finalizing our decision on the consultant proposals and beginning the study in October, 2019.
