A GROWING CITY WITH DIVERSE HOUSING NEEDS

Austin is a fast-growing city, having expanded to nearly a million residents in just a few years. Some predict the region's population could be 4 million people by 2050.

Such rapid growth has an serious impact upon accessible housing, growing gentrification, transportation, and affordable homes in neighborhoods that are healthy and safe.

Austin is committed to ensuring equitable access to affordable housing and the opportunities that safe, stable home provides.

WHAT IS AFFORDABLE HOUSING?

Housing is defined as affordable if someone pays no more than 30 percent of monthly income for rent/mortgage and utilities, and no more than 45 percent of monthly income on housing and transportation costs.

WHO DOES NHCD SERVE?

NHCD increases affordable housing supply, promotes stable homeownership, and fosters equitable, integrated, and diverse communities.

Eligibility for assistance is largely determined by Median Family Income (MFI), which is the annual income in which half the population makes more, and half the population makes less.

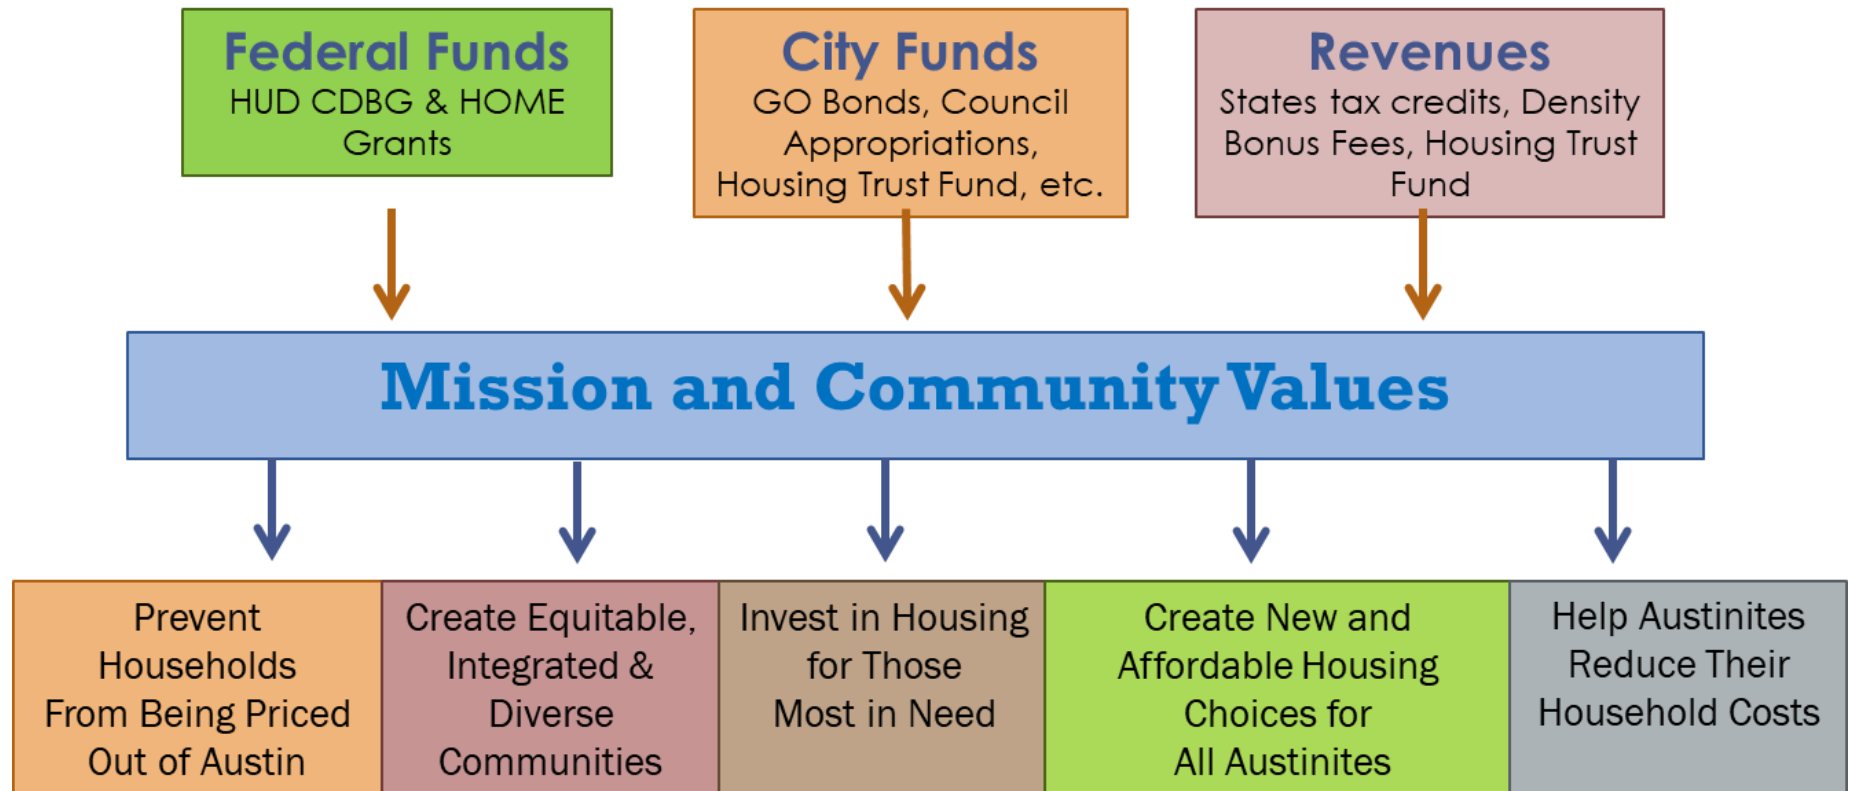

2019 Austin Area Median Family Income (MFI)*

- 30% MFI: $19,900 for 1-person household; $28,400 for a 4-person household
- 50% MFI: $33,150 for 1-person household; $47,300 for a 4-person household
- 80% MFI: $52,850 for 1-person household; $75,500 for a 4-person household

Per HUD effective June 2019 for the Austin-Round Rock-San Marcos Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA)*

FULFILLING THE NHCD MISSION

Our mission is to cultivate a diverse and economically inclusive City by creating affordable housing opportunities and mitigating community member displacement.

AUSTIN'S HOUSING – HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Neighborhood Housing and Community Development will be honest in our communication about the history of past discrimination that led to unfair housing practices and policies as we work diligently, creatively and intentionally to cultivate a diverse and economically inclusive City by creating affordable housing opportunities and mitigating community member displacement.

The idea is simple. Low- and middle-income households purchase the house (the actual building), but pay a modest monthly fee to lease the underlying land. By taking the cost of the land out of the transaction (often the most expensive part of home ownership), homes are more affordable than those on the open real estate market.

RESOURCES FOR HOMEOWNERS

Architectural Barrier Removal Program (Owners) repairs units that pose health and safety risks or are necessary to increase self-sufficiency and mobility of low- to moderate-income residents. Eligible homeowners and renters can receive grants of up to $15,000 in home accessibility improvements.

Minor Home Repair Program provides eligible homeowners with assistance up to $5,000 a year for minor repairs for a life-threatening condition or a health and safety hazard.

HOMELESS and SPECIAL NEEDS

Homelessness is a key priority for the City of Austin, with an estimate of approximately 2,000 people experiencing homelessness on the street or in shelters. NHCD partners with Austin Public Health and several community organizations to fund and administer programs for Homeless & Special Needs populations.

Permanent Supportive Housing (PSH) is the city's investment to address chronic homelessness by creating affordable housing units linked to support services that enable chronically homeless to live independently and participate in community life to reduce costly uses of public medical and social services.

- Requires landlords to provide early notice to tenants
- Refers clients to community services/legal assistance

CREATING and PRESERVING AFFORDABLE UNITS

Incentive Programs encourage both non-profit and for-profit developers to create and preserve affordable rental and ownership housing for low- and moderate-income households and Austinites with disabilities.

Affordability may also be promoted through Development Agreements which may produce affordable units and/or fees-in-lieu.

Rental Housing Development Assistance Program expands the supply of affordable rental housing for low-income households and increases the availability of permanent supportive housing for persons experiencing homelessness or with special needs.

Affordable Housing Bonus Programs allow developers to build more units than are allowed by a location's base zoning if the developer agrees to set aside a portion of units for income-restricted affordable housing. Bonuses offset developers' costs to build affordable housing without requiring city current or future expenditures. Examples include the Downtown Density Bonus Program, University Neighborhood Overlay (UNO), and proposed citywide Affordable Housing Bonus Program.

CREATING and PRESERVING AFFORDABLE UNITS

Bond Financing through the Austin Housing Finance Corporation (AHFC) Private Activity Bonds to finance the development of affordable rental or ownership housing.

Rental Housing Development Assistance Program finance rental developments, repaid through rents collected once the property is operational.

Low-Income Housing Tax Credit Program is managed with the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs to incentivize investment in low-income housing by selling tax credits to banks and other investors, who in turn use those credits to lower their own tax bills.
