HISTORIA DE LOS PARQUES DE AUSTIN

This section considers the growth of the park system over time giving special attention to the phases and critical moments within the system's evolution to the present day. Looking to the past provides a way to contextualizing current conditions and positioning the Parks and Recreation Department to strategically build from its roots and cultivate a stronger park system that speaks to the unique desires and needs of present-day Austin.

Park System Master Plan, Bond + Governance This is a major turning point for the Austin Parks System. From 1928-1930 there is a series of critical civic actions taken to

From its beginnings as four city squares sketched on Austin's original plat, the park system has expanded and evolved over time, with an increasing focus on preserving and protecting cultural resources, as well as natural resources. The early 1900s saw the consistent expansion of the system through donations and acquisitions followed by the City of Austin's first Parks, Playground, and Boulevards Bond in 1929. The Federal Aid programs that followed the Great Depression had a major impact on shaping and expanding Austin's park system, as did the ongoing growth in population and developed area. The park system grew through both opportunistic and systematic efforts based on the norms and resources available at the time. In recent years, the park system has come to embrace natural and cultural resources as two mutually reinforcing elements in Austin's parks.

DEVELOPED LAND IS INCREASING

Imagine Austin has helped to focus and direct new growth into activity centers, still the city continues to spread out as population in surrounding counties and cities increases.

NEED FOR PARKLAND ON THE RISE

As Austin's population and economy continue to grow, the demand for park space and recreational facilities is increasing as well. PARD manages over 300 parks, 26 recreation and senior centers, and a range of facilities including: natural areas, pools, splash pads, tennis courts, soccer fields, and playgrounds.

DISTANCE TO PARKS (1/4 - 1/2 MILE) DISTANCIA A LOS PARQUES

IMPROVING PARKLAND ACCESS

In 2016, City Council set a goal of providing parkland within 1/4 mile of Urban Core residents and 1/2 mile for those outside of the Urban Core. As the city's rapid population growth continues, the City of Austin has struggled to keep up with the 24 parkacres/1,000 residents standard.

POPULATION WITHIN WALKING DISTANCE OF PARKS INCREASING BUT STILL BELOW CITY'S GOAL

Currently, 67% of Austin residents are walking distance to a park, a significant increase from 2011.

KEEPING UP WITH GROWTH

First passed in 1985, the City of Austin's Parkland Dedication Ordinance was revised in 2016 to add hotel/motel fees in addition to new residential. In 2016, Park Planning acquired 66 acres of new parkland.
