FRONTIER AIRLINES ANNOUNCES MIGRATION OF ITS FLOCK TO AUSTIN SOUTH TERMINAL, OFFERS MOVING SALE FARES AS LOW AS $49

AUSTIN, Texas - Low-cost carrier, Frontier Airlines announced today that it is moving its Austin-Bergstrom International Airport operations to a new home in the Austin South Terminal. The migration happens on November 15, 2018. Known for the animals on its aircraft tails, Frontier is holding an Austin moving sale, and fares as low as $49 are now available at FlyFrontier.com

“Frontier is heading south just in time for winter,” said Stretch the Great Blue Heron, Frontier Airlines spokesperson and Texas habitat inhabitant. “We want to remind our passengers to park at the South Terminal, so they can avoid unnecessary travel hassles and continue to enjoy the easy, affordable service Frontier brings to Austin.”

The two terminals are 20 minutes apart. Passengers should plan accordingly and park at the South Terminal to avoid any issues with travel.

“Frontier’s move to the South Terminal gives us more room to grow,” said Daniel Shurz, Senior Vice President, Commercial for Frontier Airlines. “The greater Austin community has responded incredibly well to our signature Low Fares Done Right, and we know our customers will appreciate the South Terminal’s outdoor patio and the bonus of having food trucks on site.”

Austin South Terminal is accessed only from the south boundary of the Austin-Bergstrom International Airport campus. From Burleson Road, travelers should take Emma Browning Avenue to the South Terminal.
