This contract will provide Austin Energy (AE) with a continuous supply of 115kV and 138kV transformer bushings to be used as required to replace bushings that fail periodic maintenance testing. The transformers are used throughout the AE service area and all new transformers purchased after the year 2000 are equipped with three bushings manufactured by ABB. Transformer bushings are a critical component of AE's substation class power transformers since these bushings provide the interface between the high-voltage transmission lines and the transformers. AE's Equipment and Materials Engineering section tracks performance of all existing transformer bushings and continues to monitor the transformer market and industry.

ABB is the original equipment manufacturer of the transformer bushings being purchased and Power Supply Inc. is the only ABB authorized dealer for the sale of these bushings to the City.
