Additional Backup Information

The contract for the supply of dry rock rip rap boulders will be used by two departments: Watershed Protection’s Field Operations and Public Works’ Street and Bridge, Utilities and Structures, and Concrete crews.

In order to restore rainwater flow capacity in our creeks and channels, Watershed Protection uses rip rap to repair eroded embankments. Rip rap is also used to fill scour holes in creek beds, stabilize channel bottoms to allow heavy duty equipment to perform creek clearing, and for other types of erosion repair maintenance. Public Works uses rip rap for emergency bridge and road stabilization when bridge abutments and road shoulders are washed out during flooding events.

If the City is unable to enter into a contract, repairs and stabilization of degraded creeks and channel banks will not be performed causing the flow rate of rainwater to be compromised. The slower flow rate would likely back up creeks during a rain event. The lack of access to these materials during emergency storm events may also lead to additional erosion of infrastructure as flood waters continue to flow and extend road closure times.

The current contract expires May 19, 2018; however, actual usage has surpassed the forecasted usage on this contract and has led to the early depletion of contract authorization. The current contract has an authorized amount of $438,315, of which the department has spent $358,582. The requested authorization amount was determined by the department’s need for materials for daily operation as well as emergency flooding events.
