Additional Backup Information:

The original Information Technology Building at Austin-Bergstrom International Airport was constructed by the Air Force in 1952. In order to provide a modern and expanded facility to allow for at least 20 years of growth, a new Information Technology Building is being designed.

As part of the space planning and design for the New Information Technology Building, additional space requirements were necessary to meet the expanded information technology needs. Expanded mechanical, electrical and fire suppression equipment were added to handle this increased technical space. In addition, temporary power and air conditioning systems were required to securely support continuous operations during construction.

This supplemental amendment is needed in order to support the additional professional services requirements for the design and construction administration associated with the renovation and expansion of the New Information Technology building.

This amendment has been approved by the City's Change Control Committee. The Change Control Committee was established to comply with Council Resolution No. 20120126-048, which required the establishment of consistent criteria and process to evaluate contractual changes for all contracts administered by the Capital Contracting Office. The Change Control Committee is comprised of management-level subject matter experts.
