Additional Backup Information:

Community First! Village, developed by Mobile Loaves and Fishes non-profit organization, is a master planned community that provides affordable, permanent housing and a supportive community for people coming out of chronic homelessness. The village currently houses more than 200 residents and consists of micro-homes, RVs and amenities for residents.

Phase I of the village opened in 2015 and is a 27-acre site that provides affordable, sustainable housing for formerly homeless individuals. The development consists of a medical clinic, community market, operations building, art house, blacksmith forge, woodshop, and an organic farm that provides fresh produce to the community's residents.

Phase II of the Village, which opened in 2020, is directly adjacent to the Phase I development and adds an additional 24 acres - bringing the entire property to 51 acres and more than 500 homes. Phase II includes additional amenities, such as community gardens, an entrepreneur hub, a donor recognition park and a 3D-printed office building.

Phases III and IV will add homes at two sites. Phase III will be located on 51 acres near the current village on Hog Eye Road in far Northeast Austin. Phase IV will be 10 miles to the south at a 76-acre site on Burleson Road between McKinney Falls Parkway and U.S. 183. The sites will be similar to the original village, functioning as self-contained communities where residents can access supportive services and share amenities with their neighbors.

The Development Services Department has coordinated with other City departments to develop an estimate of fees and infrastructure support that would apply to Phases III and IV. Development fees and infrastructure support for Phase III, projected to add 500 homes, are estimated to total $2,205,601. Development fees and infrastructure support for Phase IV, projected to add 800 homes, are estimated to total $2,106,601. These costs for both phases span three fiscal years: FY21 costs are $89,848; FY22 costs are $616,000; and FY23 costs are $3,606,354.

The proposed ordinance would waive the development fees and infrastructure support for Phases III and IV in keeping with prior action for Community First! Village. Approval of this ordinance would further the City's commitment to providing affordable permanent supportive housing to vulnerable residents.

Strategic Outcome(s):

Economic Opportunity & Affordability.
