 External Email - Exercise Caution ***

Afternoon,

Here is an update on the upcoming Independent Citizens Redistricting Commission (ICRC) "VIRTUAL" meetings.

District 6 is tomorrow.

Anyone can attend in order to understand the process and hopefully provide input for your district.

Make sure you look at the growth map. Very interesting.

I "WISH" the ICRC would make that map available. That way the public could get more than a few monuments to view.
THAT IS A HINT - ICRC.

Meeting times for

District 6

District 3

District 2

District 1

and District 5 are below.

Be Safe

Redistricting Commission rescheduling public forums in face of COVID fears

AUSTIN, TX (Aug. 2, 2021) – The Independent Citizens Redistricting Commission (ICRC) is working to confront challenges to scheduling public forums in every City Council district given the recent move to Stage 4 of COVID precautions. These forums are the ICRC's primary method of receiving public feedback related to the redistricting of the 10 Austin city council boundaries.

“One of the biggest challenges this commission has faced in getting the word out to the public that these forums are happening has been COVID,” said Commissioner Dr. Sterling Lands. “People are afraid to congregate, so we are hosting some public forums online via Zoom.”

After the Austin City Library closed its branches when the city moved to Stage 4 of COVID precautions, Tuesday's District 6 Public Forum was moved to a virtual format. The public can still attend the District 6 public forum 6-8 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 3, 2021 via Zoom Meeting at <https://zoom.us/j/93834842830?pwd=ajNDNzhYRHFDeWxEQ3RFSmh6MExBUT09> .

Log in with meeting ID: 938 3484 2830 and passcode: 7Fn9ST.

The Independent Citizens Redistricting Commission (ICRC) has continued to focus on gathering feedback in each of the districts as it waits for the 2020 Census data to redraw the boundaries for the 10 city council districts and will host socially distanced in-person public forums. The commissioners have replaced some in-person meetings with virtual meetings and have also added two virtual meetings to their schedule.

The volunteer board of commissioners wants to learn about the unique characteristics of Austin's communities from community members themselves. Community members are familiar with their neighborhoods and have crucial feedback to help the commissioners determine the areas that should remain intact and/or be grouped together. This why they are inviting the public to these public forums.

These volunteers are committed to drawing up a fair, impartial and inclusive city district map. At these forums, attendees will hear from the ICRC about the process being followed to create the new City Council district maps.

The goal is to have a new district map approved in November.
