12:00 PM - Public Communication: General

Susana Almanza - Demolitions; continued legacy of displacement and gentrification in East Austin.

Alexia Leclercq - Demolition: The continued legacy of demolition and gentrification in East Austin.

Paul Robbins - City and budget issues.

Sylvia Herrera, Ph.D. - Demolitions: The Continued Legacy of Displacement and Gentrification in East Austin.

Mario Cantu - ATCEMS Pay increase.

Hanan Levy -DACC Relocation to 124 W8th st.

Zachary Faddis - Lack of housing and affordability

Paula Kothmann - When commercial properties don't pay their fair share in property taxes, residents shoulder more burden. This egregious inequity exacerbates our housing crisis and prevents Austinites from buying a home of their own.

Zion Jefimoff - I would like to speak on being homeless in Austin and the faulty housing issues 3300 homeless experience daily and the many reasons a person ends up homeless. Plus I want to discuss the solution to end homeless that 50 states will copy because Austin was copied in the 60s with low income housing. I have many COA employees and officials that support my solution been working on it for 2 years. I would like a chance to break down the blueprint on ending homelessness.

Michael Ward Jr. - Austin Urban Technology Movement (AUTMHQ) is following up on the budget amendment request to expand workforce development and job placement in Austin for people that are low-income, underserved, and experiencing homelessness. AUTMHQ urges City Council to financially and strategically support AUTMHQ as it upskills our most vulnerable communities to enter the technology industry and provides digital literacy training, both of which will help eliminate the technical skills gap in tech and close the digital divide. These programs would radically change the lives of People Experiencing Homelessness (PEH), low-income, and underserved communities by providing a pathway forward for them to become self-sustaining and support the economic growth of Austin.
