THE TRAIN TO CRYSTAL CITY

FDR's Secret Prisoner Exchange Program and America's Only Family Internment Camp During World War II

by Jan Jarboe Russell

"Engrossing...Russell documents in chilling details a shocking story of national betrayal." —Kirkus Reviews

"[An] informative, disturbing, and necessary reminder of the dangers produced by wartime hysteria." —Booklist

"Russell pulls no punches describing the cost of war and the conditions internees endured....a powerful piece." —Publishers Weekly

"...A story of heartbreaking dislocation, of lives smashed and ruined, and of almost unbelievable human endurance, resilience, and determination....a powerful book that will leave you shaking your head in disbelief."

-S.C. Gwynne, New York Times bestselling author of Rebel Yell and Empire of the Summer Moon

Scribner is pleased to publish THE TRAIN TO CRYSTAL CITY: FDR's Secret Prisoner Exchange Program and America's Only Family Internment Camp During World War II by Jan Jarboe Russell (978-1-4516-9366-9), to be released on January 20, 2015.

In it you'll encounter the never-before-told secret history of an American internment camp in Crystal City, Texas, a desolate and dusty town just 35 miles from the Mexican border. During WWII, train cars with shades pulled shut delivered over 6,000 civilians to the guards at Crystal City. Men of German, Japanese, and Italian descent and their families—many of whom were US citizens—were ripped from their homes across the United States and Latin America and deposited at Crystal City without due process. They were arrested, charged with no crime, and incarcerated simply because of their country or culture of origin.

With expert investigation and skilled story-telling, Russell (Lady Bird: A Biography of Mrs. Johnson) exposes this little-known chapter of America's history. Through extensive interviews with two women who were interned in Crystal City as children — Ingrid Eiserloh of Strongsville, Ohio and Sumi Utsushigawa of Los Angeles — Russell reveals not only the harsh realities of day-to-day life at the camp, but also the covert purpose of the entire "Quiet Passage" program. Throughout WWII, hundreds of prisoners from Crystal City, including American-born children, were traded for more "important" Americans behind enemy lines in Japan and Germany. Many of these children, including Sumi and Ingrid, and their parents struggled to rebuild their lives in foreign cities decimated by the war. They fought to return to the United States.

Complete with archival and family photographs, Russell's latest work is an important addition to our understanding of World War II, and a timely read as we continue to grapple with contemporary international issues of preventative detainment and prisoner exchanges. Yet despite the seriousness of her inquiry and the harrowing experiences of internees, THE TRAIN TO CRYSTAL CITY is ultimately an inspiring story of resilience and patriotism.

Jan Jarboe Russell is a Neiman Fellow, a contributing editor for Texas Monthly, and has written for the San Antonio Express-News, The New York Times, Slate, and other magazines. She is the author of Lady Bird: A Biography of Mrs. Johnson and has also compiled and edited They Lived to Tell the Tale. She lives in San Antonio, Texas, with her husband, Dr. Lewis F. Russell, Jr.
