

How to Make Earth Day Crayons

1) Heat your oven to 280 degrees.

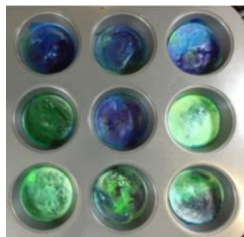

2) Add your crayon pieces to the tins (any shape tines you'd like to create would be fun too), I put around 15-20 1/2" to 3/4" pieces (blue, green, and white) in each cup. The more you put in, the thicker the final crayon will be which will help prevent breaking.

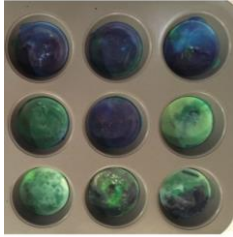

3) Bake for 10-12 minutes.

4) Carefully remove from oven and allow to cool for about an hour.

5) Place in freezer for about an hour. This will help contract the wax from the sides of the tin and they crayons will pop out. Just be sure you are careful or they could break when you flip them over to drop out. Perhaps you'll want to use a cookie sheet on top of the tin when you flip it, so the crayons only just drop out.

Allow them to rest for a couple of minutes then use a towel (paper towel or old towel in case of crayon marks) to remove condensation from crayon.
